The 5th Annual California Manufacturers & Technology Association/Industrial Environmental Association Conference is designed to provide businesses with a combination of legislative, regulatory, policy, and program implementation updates. Conference Plenary Session

Moderator: Alan Ball, Qualcomm

Jeffrey Byron
California Energy Commissioner

As California's electricity demands continue to grow, the California Energy Commission is undertaking a wide array of programs, including energy efficiency, green buildings, power plant siting and transmission, renewable energy, emerging fuels and technology and climate change, to improve energy systems that promote a strong economy and a health environment. In October, 2006, the California Energy Commission held the first California Electricity and Air Quality Conference to address ways to improve air quality and it's relationship to energy production and use.

Prior to his appointment by Governor Schwarzenegger, Commissioner Byron had extensive experience developing strategic solutions for businesses to manage energy efficiency programs and to reduce energy use and carbon emissions.
